Late in the evening on Monday, March 9th, an underground equipment failure instigated a power outage event in the Brighton Street area. Approximately 600 customers were without electric service starting at 11:35 P.M. on Monday, including residents of the low-rise buildings of the Hill Estates, the Winn Brook School, and a few downtown businesses. In just over an hour, Belmont Light's hard-working crews restored power to about half of the impacted customers. They resolved the issue for another 250 customers by 2:00 A.M.

Belmont Light's operations team continued to work through the night to restore service to the remaining 52 customers whose outages lasted overnight and into the next morning. Some planned, non-disruptive work will occur on the equipment in the Brighton Street area over the next few weeks, but Belmont Light does not expect any further incidents related to this outage.
